

We are proud to announce that Director & President of Barnes Wendling CPAs, Jeff Neuman recently received the Cleveland State University Alumnus of the Year award. The award was given out by Beta Alpha Psi and the Accounting Association at the 37th Annual Spring Awards Banquet on April 23.

Jeff graduated Cum Laude from Cleveland Marshall College of Law at Cleveland State, where he received his Juris Doctorate.

Jeff along with Barnes Wendling has a great relationship with Cleveland State University's Accounting Association. Jeff sits on the Cleveland State Accounting Advisory Board, where he works closely with Chairman Bruce McClain. Because the Accounting Association, along with Career Services has a better understanding of our firm, they've been able to match us with students who have been a great fit. Over the years we have had the pleasure of hiring many of our Cleveland State interns.

Jeff's commitment to Cleveland State goes beyond the students we hire. In 2006, Barnes Wendling CPAs founded the Anthony J. Sejba Endowment Scholarship benefiting CSU accounting students.

Because Jeff believes in the accounting profession and the students of Cleveland State, the firm has spent a lot of time working with Career Services to create a unique experience. We have offered presentations to the accounting classes and the Accounting Association on topics such as interviewing techniques and selecting an employer of choice.
